10. TNB Welcomes Jena Mclean as Artist in Residence

Theatre New Brunswick is pleased to name Jena McLean as its 2021 artist-in-residence. A recent graduate of the National Theatre School's playwriting program, McLean was a participant in the company's inaugural Fall Festival of New Plays, a program launched in 2020 to showcase and develop new work by New Brunswick playwrights. Jena is driven to create work that is rich with complex roles for queer folks and young women alike. Her plays explore life's grey areas, personalize the political, and aim to empower people to feel seen in theatre.

Beginning in July, McLean will work closely with TNB Artistic Director Natasha MacLellan and the rest of the TNB staff to gain hands-on experience working as a member of a professional theatre company while furthering her work as an emerging playwright. McLean's play An Ocean of Evergreens, developed as part of last year's Fall Festival of New Plays, will be produced this summer in Fredericton by the latest capital region theatre start-up, Red Panda Productions.
