2. The Silver Wave Film Festival 2021 – in-person & online, Nov. 4-11

For more than two decades, Fredericton's Silver Wave Film Festival has been curating a week of film screenings and awards to celebrate the wealth of filmmaking talent that exists here in the province. After a tumultuous 20th anniversary year that forced the festival to deliver its entire slate of programming online, this year's festival, while still largely an online affair, will include three in-person events: the annual Awards Gala, an 11-film showcase of New Brunswick short films, and the highly-anticipated hometown screening of Jillian Acreman's award-winning feature length debut, Queen of the Andes.

Beyond the three in-person events, SWFF's virtual screening line-up covers films from near and far such as documentaries, features, and a plethora of short films from across the Maritimes, the country, and around the world including the psychological thriller Shush by Toronto-born filmmaker Michael Ray Fox, Contents Under Pressure by Atlantic Canadian poet, and experimental filmmaker Benjamin C. Dugdale and George Kalivas' documentary The Best Pizza City You've Never Heard Of, a road-trip film exploring the Windsor, Ontario's little known pizza scene. One Pint at a Time, this year's International Feature explores how Black-owned breweries and reshaping the craft beer industry in the United States.

With the exception of this year's two in-person screenings, all other screenings will be offered free of charge and will be available for online viewing for the duration of the festival. Get the full rundown at swfilmfest.com. Back to top.

3. Chats et châssis, An Introduction & Confluences open at Gallery 78 on Nov. 5 at 5 p.m.

Opening are three exhibitions of highly anticipated works. In Chats et châssis, Raymond Martin delights with a new series of works of curious cats sitting at our dinner tables, alongside brilliant re-visitations of past series such as the that of the Kangiqsujuaq landscape. In An Introduction, Stephen Hutchings grounds his work of charcoal drawings and oil on wood panels in Pictorialist photographs from the turn of the 20th century, putting original photographic images in a contemporary context and examining the shifting definitions of beauty. Céline Genest's series of paintings and diptychs, Confluences, explores the figure and nature and the human presence within landscapes, weaving together opposing feelings in the process.

The works will be available online starting November 2. For the opening on Friday, Nov. 5, tickets/reservations are not needed, but masks, contact information, proof of vaccination, and ID are required for entry. Back to top.

4. 2021 MusicUNB Contemporary Music Festival, Nov. 5-7

This year's three concerts feature new works by Hope Salmonson, a Queer/Trans composer and tubist, based in Sackville. Hope has composed two new works specifically for the festival, and we are very lucky to have her join us on stage as well! In addition to Salmonson's new works, this year's festival features compositions by Shulamit Ran, Monica Pearce, Kaija Saariaho, Ann Southam, Carmen Braden, Georgia Stitt, Courtney Bryan, and Ethel Smyth.

They have between them over 100 years of guitar beating. This leads to an eclectic interpretation of masters like Bruce Springsteen, Jackson Browne, Jason Isbell, Chris de Burg, Van Morrison, along with the occasional original tunes that falls out of their heads.

Tickets are $10 in advance or $15 at the door and can be purchased at <https://bit.ly/3pPQBi8>. Back to top.

The Fredericton Arts Alliance gratefully acknowledges the financial support it receives for ARTSnews from the City of Fredericton

The Fredericton Arts Alliance gratefully appreciates the support of the Sheila Hugh Mackay Foundation in our efforts to use new technology to bring the arts to a wider audience during this period of isolation. We hope this investment will pay off long into the future when we will again be able to interact directly.
